Situation

A large financial services organization was struggling to find local, front-end development talent in Detroit, Michigan, to work on a major project focused on customer login applications for payments and collection processes, and deferring payments and loan extensions.

The skill sets required experience in React, Angular and JavaScript technologies at a mid to senior level. That kind of talent was generally in high demand, with open IT roles outweighing available talent.

Strategy

Within 24 hours after System Soft Technologies' IT recruiting team gained a deep understanding of the project and what the hiring profile looked like, several available contract resources were identified and made known to the financial services organization. Soon after, these resources were hired by the client.

Outcome

Based on their positive performance, the IT resources hired by the financial services organization had their contracts extended.

This was the first time System Soft had worked with this client and its Director of Application Development. The manager made a strong point of stating how effective System Soft's IT recruitment process was and the level of professionalism and technical aptitude of the IT consulting and staffing team..

By providing unparalleled access to a global talent network, System Soft's strategic IT staffing solutions simplify the recruiting process for any organization.
